All I Can Do

Of late I've been, thinking back to where it all began

I have been trying to figure when, it started raining in our heaven

Like it is today ... and it's all I can do.

To keep myself from breaking down,

There are times it wears me out

I've always been true to you,

That is all I can do

And as this fades, I'll remember you

Somewhere deep down you must concede

This isn't how we're supposed to feel

And though I know you'll always be

A part of me I still have to leave

Though this is cutting right through

Still it's all I can do

There is no one to blame, I think somehow we share this too

And that you feel the same

It's hard for me to say, to be the one to throw the towel

Although I think you may

See it's all that we can do, maybe even right for you

And as we walk away, I pray to god she'll keep you safe

And you will find your way,

Can you ever forgive us for loosing sight of it, I tried I really did

You could never really know, how hard it is letting go

So now I'll pray to God

I'll pray to God